

Every Soldier has a Story: Pottery, Animation, Music!

This vase was made on the Greek island of Euboea in around 550BC.

The decoration shows combat training and athletes practicing their running.

You can see the real vase in the Ure Museum (it's number 56.8.8).

Panoply have made an animation called

Hoplites! Greeks at War.

It was made from a scene on an ancient Greek vase that's housed in the Ure Museum in Reading.

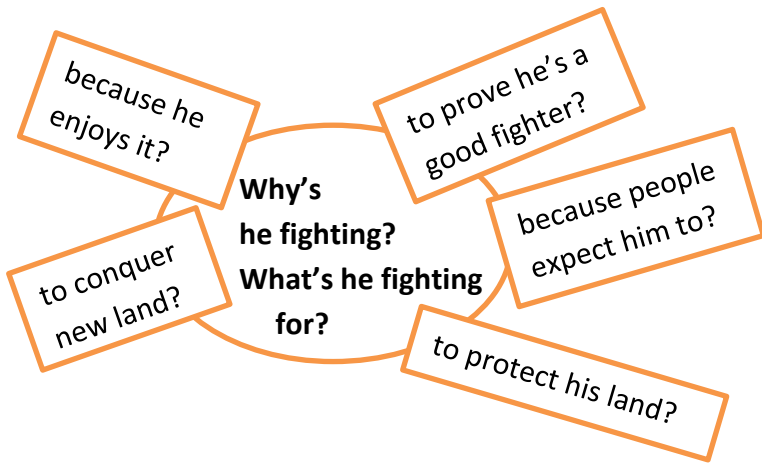

Every soldier is an individual as well as a soldier.
Help us give every soldier a story.

Take a look at this vase,
imagine who one of the soldiers might be and tell us something about him.

Who is your hoplite? What's his story?
Put one of your ideas in the box on page 3.

www.panoply.org.uk/eversoldier.html

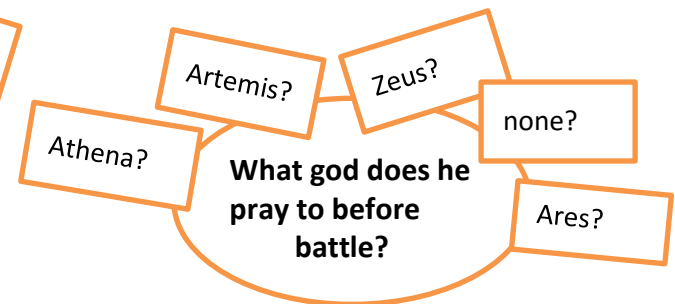

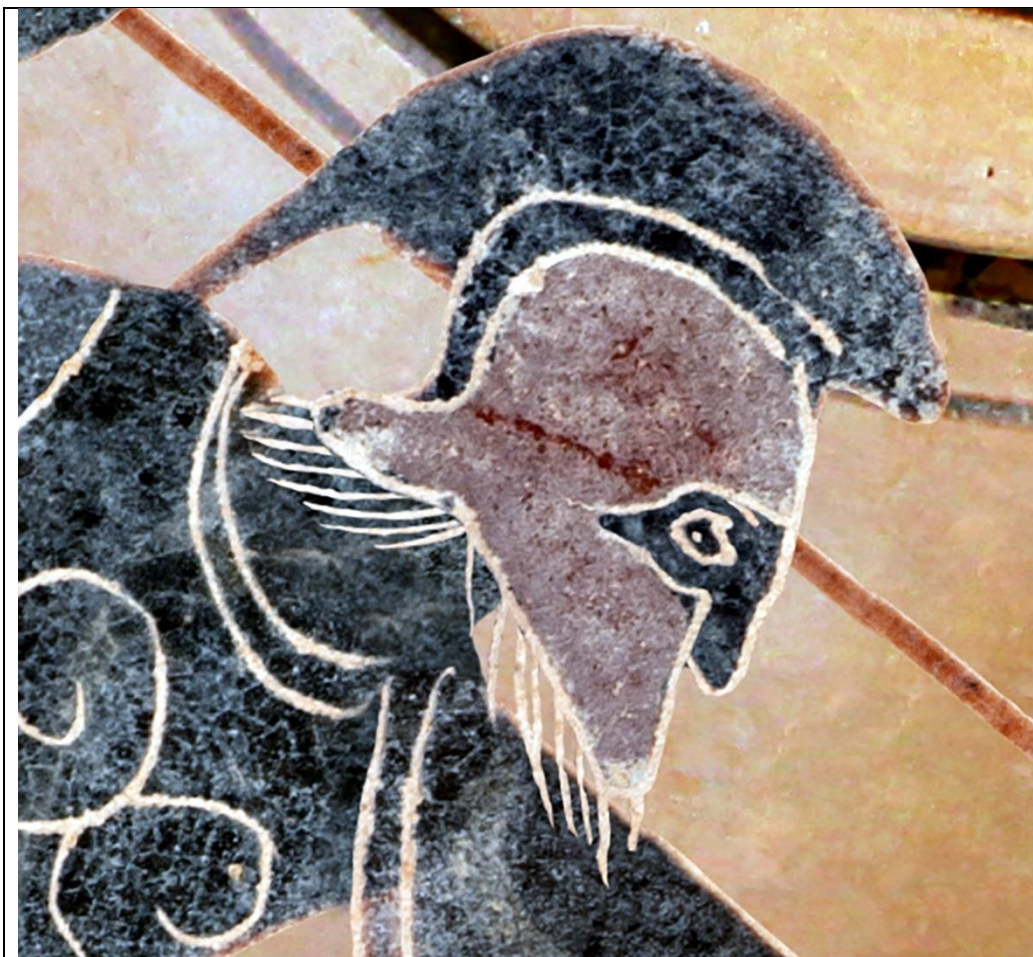

Who is this Greek soldier?
Tell us something about him on the next page.
Let these questions get you thinking.

Does he keep an animal?

| | | | |
|--|--|--|--|
| | | | |
| | | | |
| | | | |
| | | | |
| | | | |
| | | | |

This is a blank storyboard. Storyboards are used in making animations to plan what will happen and how the scenes will look.
Make up a story about your hoplite soldier. Put a key moment in each box with a description of what's happening underneath.